BASIC-ABSTRACT:

NOVELTY - The golf practicing apparatus has a flexible inelastic tether (2) with a golf ball (5) attached to one end. The other end has a fixing device (6) allowing the tether to be fastened to the ground. The mass of the tether is sufficient to counter balance the golf ball, to limit the rebound of the golf ball when struck.

USE - As a golf practicing apparatus.

ADVANTAGE - Rebound of the golf ball is limited to avoid the ball rebounding too far and hitting the golfer, causing injury.

DESCRIPTION OF DRAWING(S) - The drawing shows the golf practicing apparatus.

ABSTRACTED-PUB-NO: GB 2093706A

BASIC-ABSTRACT:

The golf ball is connected by a short length of cord to a drogue, which in turn is connected by a cord length of approx. 4m to a peg in the ground. After being struck, the ball is arrested by the cord.

Most of the kinetic energy of the ball is absorbed by the drogue, so there is little or no energy left when the ball has travelled twice the length of the cord. Thus, there is no dangerous rebound of the ball towards the golfer. The arrangement enables the golfer to practice his swing within a limited space and with easy retrieval of the ball.
